This article was sent out by Becky Burke in EMS, but contains concepts central to learning in general. We have seen more and more of these articles as more folks are beginning to realize a more enjoyable way to 'teach'. Classroom environments are becoming more engaging, with more relevant instruction, and supportive relationships that foster deep learning, critical thinking, and student success!

Please forward... and this is a good time (mid-term approaching) to remind your faculty to have a plan for those students not performing up to par. This is not to coddle, but to lead! The ultimate objective is to lead students to the point where they accept responsibility for their own learning. Just keep in mind that this is the ultimate objective and not one they may have shown up with.

Thank you for all you do!!
